To condense the entire history of architectural styles into a 160-page, A5-sized book is quite a challenge, and the author has done well here. There are five main sections, each divided into about 12 "isms". So for example the "Renaissance" section contains Humanism, Idealism, Anglican Empiricism, Baroque, Rococo, etc, etc

In architecture, rationalism is an architectural current which mostly developed from Italy in the 1920s-1930s. Vitruvius had claimed in his work De Architectura that architecture is a science that can be comprehended rationally. This formulation was taken up and further developed in the architectural treatises of the Renaissance.
